Culburra Beach & Districts Men's Shed

It's mid-winter, and our various local cavity breeding birds are starting to scout out locations for breeding in the coming spring and summer. You'll doubtless notice increased activity in your local bushland, parks and reserves; and your own backyard.

So, it's a great time to consider putting up a nest box in your backyard to provide habitat for local wildlife. All our native birds and arboreal mammals are suffering greatly from habitat loss, and your contribution can make a notable difference to ensuring our endemic creatures survive and thrive,

Popular target species are rosellas and kookaburras, but native fauna can't read and you never know who might move in.

A common complaint after a native bird nest box is installed is that it "isn't being used by" or "isn't attracting" the target species. The usual reason is simply that the box is occupied by another resident, usually a possum (but it could be a snake or monitor lizard) that the birds can't displace.

Possums are a part of Australian life, both in urban areas or adjacent to bush areas. Brushtail possums have become quite adaptable and will readily take to nest boxes, whether intended or otherwise. Similarly, ringtail possums, who usually use dreys, will also seek out nest boxes if they feel threatened by predators.

Brushtails will sometimes take over kookaburra or owl nest boxes. They need quite a large box, with an opening of 100mm or larger. Their preferred height is flexible, as long as the location is free from lights, traffic and disturbance.

Ringtail possums may go for a deeper nest box with a smaller entry and seem quite partial to the standard rosella boxes. Although ringtails are not aggressive, and pose no threat to eggs and chicks, rosellas are quite timid and will not attempt to challenge them.

None of the above should prevent the installation of a nest box or two. Nature is random, with no guarantees, but one thing is certain; one or other of our native wildlife will benefit from the shelter.

Of course, there are plenty of other birds and possums that will use nest boxes i.e. sugar gliders, lorikeets, owl nightjars, tree creepers, pardalotes, feathertail gliders, pygmy possums and antechinus. And don't forget our local microbats.

We make nest boxes for all the above birds, possums and microbats. Please call in for a chat and cuppa on Monday or Wednesday mornings and take a look at the range of products.

Note from Editor

You will see the cover photograph is not from Callala Bay.

In discussions with a few of the locals, I have decided to make a small change for our winter. This is Doha, temperature at night 30 degrees, and during the day anywhere from 35 to 45 degrees. The land is flat, and sandy (lots of it) and QATAR was only developed from 1985. Land is being reclaimed from the sea for accommodation and power is provided by big (and I mean big) generators throughout Doha. The population is 3million, with an itinerant workforce, mainly from India, Pakistan, Philippines and Nepal. On speaking with a cabbie, I made a comment about his SUV's economy as it was reading 19.5litres to 100km. He said he didn't really worry too much as petrol was cheaper than water. An amazing city that is steadily growing.

Builder Brings 25 Years of Experience Back to Callala Bay

I began my career here in 2000 with a carpentry apprenticeship at Beechwood Homes, and over the next 15 years I worked my way up to foreman, leading high-end architectural renovations across Sydney's Eastern Suburbs. Two of these projects were featured in respected housing magazines, something I'm proud of to this day.

Now, with 25 years of experience and as a member of the Master Builders Association, I've returned to the South Coast to focus on building quality homes for locals. My latest project is a small, boutique development nearing completion in Callala Bay: just eight thoughtfully designed villas created with independent, low-maintenance living in mind.

These two-bedroom villas were inspired by a growing need I saw in the area for people looking to downsize from larger homes, without losing comfort or convenience. Each home features step-free access, sunlit living spaces, oversized bathrooms and bedrooms, large kitchen drawers throughout, and a wall oven placed at a comfortable height. A concrete path connects each villa to nearby shops and the bus stop.

The design is all about making life easier, now and in the future. With minimal shared areas, strata fees are kept very low—similar to what many already pay in home insurance.

There are only two villas remaining, but there's still time to consider your next move. No pressure, just well-built homes for people who appreciate good design.

HERB UP! USING CCG'S BEAUTIFUL FRESH HERBS...

There are so many herbs growing inside our wonderful Garden and in the outside boat area, and so many ways to enjoy them.

We have curly and flat leaf parsley, broadleaf rocket (yum), basil (coming to an end), chives, thyme, rosemary, oregano, sage, coriander (not much at the moment), mint – continental and Asian – and wonderful lemongrass, delicious in tea with ginger! With such vibrant taste, fresh herbs are a really simple way to raise the flavour of your meals.

Typically, fresh herbs are added at the end of cooking to maximise flavour but can also be incorporated at the beginning – it just depends on the herb and how intense you want the flavour. The thing about herbs is that once you start using them, you'll want to use them more and more.

Herbs can be used in pesto, flavoured oils, butters, soups, salads, and as a garnish. You can also freeze or dry them for later use. Soft herbs like basil, mint, and parsley are great raw in salads or scattered over cooked dishes and used as garnish or in salad dressings. Woody herbs like rosemary and thyme can be added to dishes during cooking.

Delicate herbs like basil, coriander, parsley, and mint can be frozen whole or chopped in ice cube trays. If you soften butter and mix it with chopped herbs, you'll create flavourful herb butter.

And let's not forget about the medicinal value and other uses of herbs... for example, parsley is rich in vitamins A and C, while oregano has antioxidant properties. They can also repel insects! Mint, lavender, sage and lemon thyme are good for this, while tarragon, basil, rosemary, and mint can be used as breath fresheners.

We say, "herb up your cooking!"

TIPS:

Use sparingly: Herbs can be strong, so use them in moderation to avoid overpowering other flavours.

Blend carefully: Combine herbs based on the desired flavour profile, using one strong herb as a base and adding supporting herbs.

Add delicate herbs at the end: For delicate herbs, add them towards the end of cooking to preserve their flavour and aroma.

Experiment: Don't be afraid to experiment with different herbs and combinations to find your favourites.

UNUSUAL GROWTHS:

A few of these Aseroe Rubra Anenome, (Stinkhorn fungus,) have been found growing in an area of mulch. Quite alien in appearance, they make a change from the usual fungi. They emit a foul odour to attract flies, who then spread their spores.

HARVEST

Citrus - we have about a dozen fruit on our Meyer Lemon tree. Even with an unusual main branch, it tries very hard to produce fruit for us. While the skin is a little blemished, the fruit inside is juicy. Our Tahitian Lime, having had many blossoms, has only amounted to about 4 fruit. We'll keep trying.

One of our Daikon radishes decided to grow, resembling an octopus! It bumped into the sloping edge of a boat we think. Quite a challenge.

Native raspberry fruits are making an appearance and ripening. Is this early?

Jerusalem artichoke has proven an interesting plant. This is the first time we have grown them. The seed-tubers were planted in an upright compost bin and presented their delightful yellow flowers in March. You can see how they are part of the sunflower family. The tubers below the soil have a sweet, nutty taste. There were 3.1 kg harvested on 15th May.

We are disappointed with the progress of the Blueberries in the ground so Lynn is organising getting them into new big pots. Let us know if you have any spare

Here is Victoria's recipe for a delicious cake using our abundant citrus.

FRIEND OR FOE

Delightful as they are, a bowerbird has been discovered eating some lovely tender young cos lettuce. That's another problem to solve.

Potted Moss for Bees

Bees need access to water. Sadly, you might see a bee drowned in a bucket of water or bird bath. To these you can add a stick or stone to help them climb out. Alternatively, we are providing attractive pots of moss, sitting in plant pot saucers to keep things moist. One member donated some small bonsai pots and another collected moss from a wet, shady area of the community garden. Bees will come and sip on the moss with a living carpet-like base.

WHATS ON

Callala Markets

The June Callala Markets were a little disappointing as the cold windy weather kept a lot of folks at home rugged up in front of the fire. We look forward to a better result in July, coinciding with the school holidays.

Your support of local craft makers and stall holders assists our Markets in supporting the local community. All profits from stall holder fees contribute to future donations.

Our latest donation was to the Greenwell Point Hospital Auxiliary. Their current project is to support Shoalhaven Hospital with the purchase of ten OOK Snow Beds with falls alarms and scale + Nebula 3 layer modulated mattresses. They are designed to assist with falls prevention and will significantly improve patient comfort across all wards within the hospital. The beds can be raised or lowered to floor level as required and staff presentations have provided insights into their practical use in patient care. The beds cost $9,215.00 each and are expected to be placed in wards across the hospital.

The Auxiliary have already committed to purchase one bed and their current fundraising efforts are focussed on the purchase of a second. The Markets donation will assist them in reaching this goal this calendar year.

Our stall holders offer a range of locally made products, ranging from handmade candles and soaps, wooden plaques and bowls, beautiful handmade pottery and jewellery through to crystals, baby booties and hats, timber craft and nest boxes, designer cards, and soft knitted children's toys. So come along and check out the variety available at your local market.

The July Markets will be on Saturday 12 July from 8am to 1pm at the Callala Community Centre, Emmett Street, Callala Bay. Rug up and come on down to grab a bargain.

The Callala Community Garden will also be open for visitors on that day. Fresh seasonal produce is always popular, so come on down and check the entire range.

We always hope for fine weather, but we'll be there - rain, hail or shine. Want to join us? Contact Sandra on 0413 581419 for stallholder enquiries.

Culburra Beach & District Garden Club Inc.

Hi everyone, At the June meeting, our guest speaker was Mr Rob Barrel from callala matters.org. Rob gave us a brief history about Henry and Warren Halloran who bought and developed land on the South Coast. In 2014 Warren passed away and now the Halloran Trust, known as Sealark Inc. have plans to clear 40ha of forest for a 380-lot subdivision which could destroy the critical habitat of the endangered animal namely the greater glider. These marsupials are rare, and their numbers have dropped. The community is against the development as we need to protect this forest. As Rob said this property is too valuable to turn into an urban sprawl. He said that the Halloran Trust (Sea lark Inc.) need to listen to the community. As part of the community Rob suggested that we contact their web site callalamatters.org and make our comments count. He also suggested we write to Sealark Inc and the State government who is not supporting this issue. Rob did an excellent presentation, and we thanked him for visiting our club.

the Greater glider

The theme for the Display table was Camellias, introduced to Australia early in the 19th century, with the first plantings occurring in the Royal Botanic Gardens of Sydney in 1823. Horticulturalists like William Macarthur played a key role in introducing and breeding Camellias, leading to the creation of varieties like 'Aspasia Macarthur' at Camden Park. Over the years, Camellias have become a popular choice for Australian gardens, with breeding and development continuing even today. In Australia, Camellia japonica and Camellia sasanqua are the most popular Camellia varieties for gardens. Japonicas are known for their winter blooms and glossy foliage, while sasanquas are favoured for hedging and tolerate more sun. (from google) Camellias, particularly Camellia sasanqua, thrive in the South Coast of NSW due to the region's cool, temperate climate. They prefer well-drained, slightly acidic soil and a location with dappled shade or morning sun and afternoon shade. Proper planting, including improving the soil with compost or aged manure and ensuring adequate drainage, is crucial for their success. My next-door neighbour has the most beautiful display at this time of year, each flower different in form and colour. They seem to thrive in Callala.

Next month is our 34th birthday and we are celebrating it with the theme Christmas in July. We would love to see more people attending. At this meeting, a group from Callala Community Garden attended, to listen to Rob's talk and for us it was a bonus having so many visitors.

You are welcome to join us at the next meeting July 19th 1.30 pm at Culburra Anglican Church, Penguin Head Rd, Culburra Beach. Cheers to all and happy gardening, Doris Carpenter 44465631 / mob. 0428 255 616

Report shows state of the Shoalhaven's roads

Published on 30 May 2025

A comprehensive inspection report of Shoalhaven's roads has revealed the condition of the region's 1,906 km of roads and the scale of cost to renew the network.

Council engaged specialist consultants to measure the condition of the road, using techniques such as vehicle-based laser measurements to assess the condition of the road surface and the pavement below.

The report supports a recommendation from the independent review of Council's financial position which identified the need for more reliable assessments of critical assets - such as roads, buildings and stormwater drains - to better predict, prioritise and plan for renewal programs.

Acting Director Kevin Norwood said the data compiled over the past six months represents a massive improvement in Council's ability to identify and target road renewals that will get the most out of limited funds to improve the resilience and performance of our road network.

"This is the most comprehensive examination of our roads Council has ever undertaken, giving us millimetre-accurate data of the condition of our network," Mr Norwood said.

"While the data reveals that many of our roads are in need of urgent repair, benchmarking also shows that our road conditions are not dissimilar to other councils across NSW," he said.

"Funding the replacement and renewal of these roads can now be factored into long term planning and budget considerations for the future."

The data collected indicates that 133km (7%) of the Shoalhaven's 1,900km road network have very poor underlying pavement conditions which are compromising the overall health of the road. This represents a ballpark cost of $133 million to reconstruct those roads up to a satisfactory standard.

A further five percent of roads are in a poor condition and require reconstruction before deteriorating further, at an estimated cost of $95 million, along with approximately 570km of roads that need the surface replaced at an estimated cost of $54.1 million.

Almost 70% of the surface of the roads is considered to be in good condition, with 50% in very good to good condition, while 88% of the pavement below the surface is in good condition, with 66% in very good to good condition.

The data shows that the areas of disrepair are equally distributed across Council Wards, with no one area displaying better quality roads than another.

Data collected and used to inform the condition report included:

- road materials
- kerb conditions
- surface conditions
- defects such as cracking, potholes, corrugations and rutting (grooves)
- traffic volumes
- speed limits
- urban vs rural areas
- heavy vehicle rates

Resident feedback undertaken in November showed that road maintenance was the community's top priority. The rates increase of 12 per cent from 1 July 2025 will provide an additional $6 million toward road maintenance and renewal for the next financial year.

The condition report will now be analysed to cost and prioritise road works, plan and advocate for funding.

The focus for condition assessments will now shift to other critical infrastructure such as footpaths, bridges, and stormwater drains.

Sheaffe Street Pathway Project

Sheaffe Street footpath works have commenced, and the path has been constructed from Lackersteen St to approximately No. 90 Sheaffe St. Works are continuing towards the Eastern end and are expected to be complete by late August 2025.
